On February 27, 2014, I received an email stating that my committee had failed to file the YEAR END REPORT, which was due by 1/31/2014. After I had emailed the Federal Election Commission while forming this committee asking if I had to file a full report even if my committee had not raised or disbursed of any funds in any way, I was told by someone with the Federal Election Commission that a letter in lieu of a full report was acceptable so long as my committee had not raised, or disbursed of any funds. Last year, I opted to file my committees reports electronically. As this committee has not participated in any fundraising activities, or disbursement of funds in any way since its creation, I assumed that a miscellaneous form, filed electronically to the FEC, was acceptable, as it is the only electronic form which doesn't require the input of the various values associated with a report of expenditures or contributions on behalf of the committee. Therefore, I filed a miscellaneous report on January 15, 2014, stating that this committee hadn't raised or disbursed of any funds in any way during the year-end period of 2013. On January 15, I received an email from the FEC Filing Server stating that my report had been received and accepted via the DISCLOSE protocol. If this is not acceptable as a method of reporting to the FEC that this committee hasn't raised or disbursed of any funds, then I am not aware of this and would like to be told whether or not this is so.
